Gypsy Moths

Haliburton County's Forest Management Committee is taking positive steps to combat the invasion of Gypsy Moths in the Gull Lake area. Please see page 8.

Africa bound

Seventeen-year-old Ruth Major From Halls Lake is looking forward to spending the next six months in Newfoundland and Africa as part of a Canada World Youth Exchange. Please see page 6.

Circus fun

Jugglers, trapeze artists, clowns and elephants invaded Stanhope Township last weekend to entertain a huge audience. The circus was put on by the Chamber of Commerce. Please see page 11.

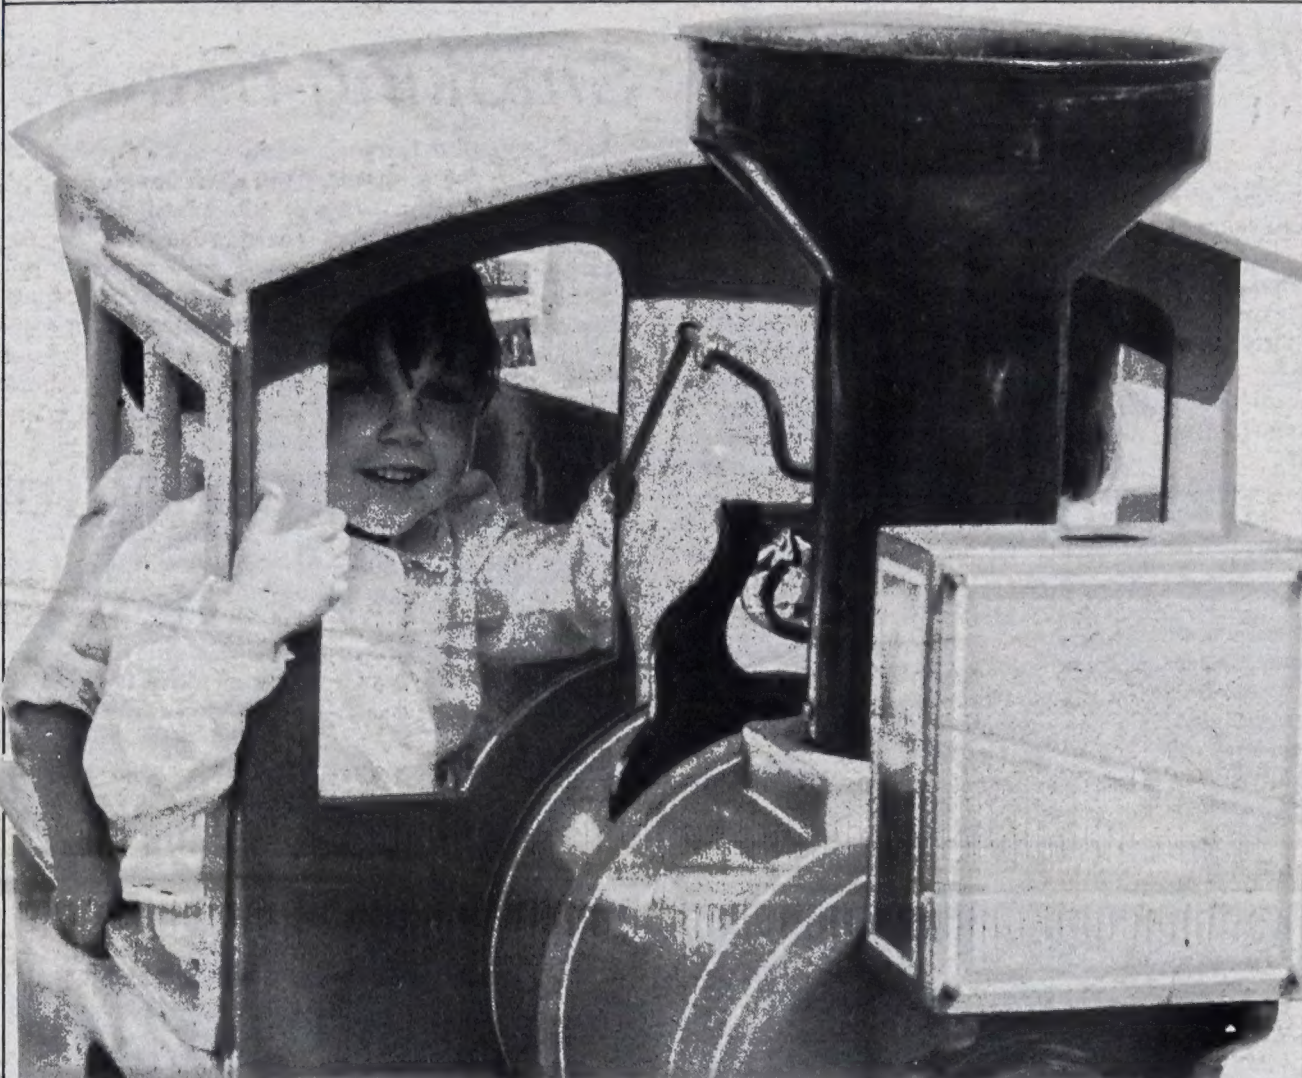

Skinhead

The skinheads were back in Minden two weekends ago and this time they got in some target shooting practice. Please see page 2.

Hearing costs

The board of education will have to come up with another $13,000 a year now that changes have been made to the funding for speech pathology programs. Please see page 13.

ALL ABOARD FOR THE FAIR

It was full steam ahead Saturday and Sunday as the Haliburton County Fair chugged along into its sixth quarter century. The children's rides are always a big hit, but again this year there was something for everyone throughout the three days of this 125th anniversary ride through the 'friendly fair.' The exhibition hall was jammed with arts, crafts, baked goods and produce from the hundreds of talented entrants. Activities on the grounds carried on throughout Saturday and Sunday, featuring a wide variety of competitions and displays. And the weather couldn't have been better with the sun shining and a gentle breeze blowing.

Dysart Sewage plant meets needs

The findings of a consultant's report into the upgrading of the Haliburton Village sewage treatment plant favours the expansion of the existing facility to meet the future needs of the community and serve the resorts along the north shore of Lake Kashagawigamog.

The findings were reported at a meeting held Tuesday evening at the Haliburton Legion Hall. The gathering was one of a series required under the Ministry of Environment regulations covering the building and expansion of municipal sewer systems.

According to the consultants, the current plant is meeting the present needs of the community and the criteria set down by the MOE for the effluent discharged from the plant. However, despite these assurances, a number of property

New tax will damage local tourism

The federal government's proposed nine per cent sales tax on goods and services will have a negative impact on Haliburton's tourism trade, according to local resort owners and industry lobby groups.

The tax is scheduled to come into affect in January 1991, and will be applied to all forms of goods and services including hotel and resort accommodations, restaurant meals and the sale of recreational and sporting equipment.

John Mateer, president of the Haliburton Highlands Chamber of Commerce and owner of Hart Lodge, says in light of the decrease in the tourism trade this summer, local businesses don't need a tax increase to drive the price of vacations up.

Mateer blames this year's slump, in part, on the tough federal and provincial budgets passed this spring. He says tough fiscal policies are forcing people to cut back and not spend money on leisure and recreational pursuits.

Before he can comment on the full impact of 'Already we are seeing the effects of our strong dollar as more Canadians than ever are travelling to the States,' says TIAC chairman.

the proposed tax, Mateer says he has to further study its implications.

The Tourism Industry Association of Canada (TIAC) has given the new tax a mixed review; praising some of its elements while damning others.

The Association has reviewed the technical paper on the sales tax released by the Minister of Finance, Michael Wilson, and says the government is ignoring the serious impact that the tax will have on Canadians, who will be discouraged from spending their tourism dollars in their own country.

TIAC predicts that the goods and services tax will push tourism prices up between six and nine per cent and will add a billion dollars a year to the balance of payments deficit on the international tourism account. This is the difference between money spent by Canadians in other countries and money spent on tourism in Canada.

"Canadians are sensitive to price differences, particularly between Canada and the United States," says Bill Rowe, Chairman of the Board of TIAC, "Already, we are seeing the effect of our strong dollar as more Canadians than ever are travelling to the States. A new nine per cent tax will only exacerbate this problem."

One of the bright spots in the government's sales tax proposal, according to Rowe, is the decision to allow foreign visitors in Canada to claim a rebate for the tax on both goods and accommodations purchased during their stay.

Skinheads get in target practice at Beatties'

The skinheads were back in Minden on August 12 and 13, and this time neighbours report they were practicing with semi-automatic firearms on John Beattie's rented property on Bobcaygeon Road.

At least three car loads of young people, sporting the symbolic brush-cut hairstyles and army fatigues, arrived at Beattie's home on the Saturday morning neighbours report. Throughout the day, they say they could hear the rapid fire of automatic or semi-automatic weapons, believed to be .22 calibre rifles. In addition, they say that loud skinhead music was played throughout the evening.

Police at the Minden OPP detachment say they were not made aware of any of these activities.

Beattie, the former head of the Canadian Nazi Party, caused a stir in early July when about 100 young skinheads arrived at his home for a whites-only rally in celebration of Canada Day. He has since been served an eviction notice and must vacate the property by the end of September. Beattie has also been expelled from the Royal Canadian Legion because of his racist views.

Rebate will go a long way

Rowe said the rebate policy will "go a long way toward preserving our share of the world tourism market."

Under the rebate policy foreign visitors will be able to claim the sales tax paid on accommodations and goods exported from Canada. The rebate must be for a minimum of 25 dollars and can be mailed to the department of national revenue within one year of the visit to Canada.

Purchases of alcohol, tobacco and gasoline are exempt from the rebate policy and applicants may be required to provide proof of purchase and export.

TIAC made a number of recommendations to the Department of Finance prior to the release of the technical paper. The key recommendations relating to rebates for foreign visitors were adopted, according to Rowe, while others affecting such areas as international conventions and package tours are still being reviewed.

"We are encouraged by the continuing positive dialogue we are having with Finance Department officials," says Rowe.

The association recommended that the sales tax include all goods and services and not exceed five per cent. The government in bringing in a nine percent tax and including exemptions like basic groceries.

One of the areas of the tourism industry hit by the goods and service tax against the recommendations of TIAC is package tours sold by Canadians outside of Canada. Foreign package tours of Canada will not be taxed.

On the positive side the government decided that both public and private tourist attractions will be treated the same in regards to the new tax. The association recommended that no competitive advantage be given to government run attractions.

The government has also decided that a sales tax credit can be claimed for tourist literature for sale or free distribution.

Smoking ban stepped up

As of September 1, smoking will not be allowed inside any Haliburton County Board of Education building at anytime.

Phase Three of the board's no-smoking policy goes into effect with the start of this school year. The full policy will be implimented in September of 1989 when smoking will be prohibited on all areas of board property.

The first stage of the policy was implemented last year, when smoking was prohibited in all school buildings during school hours but permitted in existing indoor smoking areas before 9:00 a.m. and after 4:00 p.m.

The implementation of the third stage this year abolishes indoor smoking areas but outdoor areas will remain intact for one more year.

Local ladies capture trophy

The Minden Silver Birch- es ladies softball team brought home the first place trophy from a tournament in Omeme held on August 12.

The Minden ladies won three straight games, beating the Omeme Legion 7-3, the Whitby selects 5-1 and the Red Onion Tavern 7-5.

Minden player Marcy Severn pitched all three games and was named Most Valuable Player for two of the match-ups and Joann Peirson was named MVP in the other game.

Brenda Lavender provided strong defense playing back catcher for the team.

The Silver Birches will be hosting a 16-team tournament on August 26, and invite everyone out to watch some great competitive softball.

Halliburton County Council's recent moves to provide relief from the infestation of Gypsy Moths is a perfect example of how preparation can cancel out delays when the time comes for action.

Last week the county's Forest Management Committee held a special meeting where they decided to join a co-operative spray program with nine other counties and to hire a program co-ordinator. The fact that they were aware of the co-operative program, and of the actions being taken in neighbouring counties, is a tribute to the committee and its chairman Don Shortreed.

Gypsy Moths have gradually been working their way into Halliburton County, but the sudden leap in numbers experienced in the Gull Lake area was a surprise. The committee wasn't caught with its pants down, though. They've been monitoring the situation here, in co-operation with the Ministry of Natural Resources and the Canadian Forestry Service, while keeping their eyes and ears open to what what has been happening in other areas where the destructive insects appeared several years ago.

The net result of this committee's ongoing work is that a spray program will be possible this spring if enough landowners in the Gull Lake area desire one.

Although the area where the concentration of moths exists isn't considered to be a valuable timber stand, the aesthetic value of these trees to the residents and tourists who visit the area is an important consideration. The rugged terrain of the area loses most of its beauty when the trees are stripped by caterpillars.

If allowed to go unchecked, the number of moths and caterpillars in that area will undoubtedly skyrocket by next summer, considering that each female moth is capable of laying 1,200 eggs. Fortunately, area residents now have somewhere to turn for help.

Residents of the infested area who would like to have their property sprayed next spring can get an application from the office of the county building in Minden.

We've never been more apart

black 'n white

by Arthur Black

It happened right in the middle of that heat wave a few weeks back. It was high noon, the sun was beating down like a cosmic klieg light and I was driving home from town with the car windows wide open. The cicadas whined, my shirt clung clammy to my back, the wind through the car window felt like it came from an open hearth smelter, but at least it was a wind.

I was driving slowly. It was the kind of day on which doing anything quickly was too revolting to think about. I checked out the brown lawns, the limp-leafed maples, the shimmer of the sun bouncing off car hoods and mailboxes, old Mister Pelto lying on his lawn getting a tan...

Wait a minute.

Nobody this side of a mad dog or an Englishman would lie out in a killer heat wave like this—least of all Mister Pelto. He's a senior citizen, and like most senior citizens he'd be too canny to mess around with a noonday sunshine.

So how come he's lying on his lawn? Inescapable conclusion: trouble.

While this Holmesian exercise in deductive reasoning is going on in my head, my car continues to chug away from the scene. By the time I stopped, turned around and back to Mister Pelto's driveway I realize the tableau is even more incongruous. Mister Pelto is lying awkwardly on his side, sweat dripping off his nose. He is wearing a sun hat and gardening gloves. He does not even look up when my tires screech in the driveway.

Heart attack, I think to myself. Or stroke. A young kid in a delivery van has already spotted the man on the lawn, and gone to a neighbour's to phone for an ambulance. Warily, I approach Mister Pelto. Maybe he's already dead! "What happened?" I ask stupidly. To my surprise he opens his eyes and says in a clear, calm voice "I fell. I think I broke my elbow."

Oh god, I think he's right. He's lying on his right

Developer not impressed with comments made

Editor:

I was not impressed with Mr. Bradamore's statement about Mr. Stevens being a Developer and leaving the impression he was in conflict of interest. At no time did Mr. Stevens remain in his Council's position when M.M.A.S., Limited, Heritage Plaza or Minden Auto Plaza's name appears on the agenda. He always stepped down and I personally handled all the meetings and made the presentations.

I was also in two meetings when Reeve Ray Moore did the same thing.

Mr. Bradamore stated his developments never interfered with his work. I can state this is not true. Several times I went to see Mr. Bradamore and tried to get my plans and site plan reviewed and got his attention for two minutes then had to listen to his problems about Mount Minden, the Council, P.A.C. Committee and his law suit. Once I stopped in the middle of my conversation and asked him if he was listening. He said, "No, sorry, I was thinking about something else." I also have a letter that Mr. Bradamore signed and sent to my architect and myself with set back for our plaza he was in error and that letter cost my company fourteen thousand dollars. He claims Council did not know what they were doing. I feel Mr. Bradamore should have realized the importance of his position and served the community better. He also condemns Mr. Berry for his stand, I found each Member of Council served the town with interest and made their views known but never did they present us with a problem that they did not offer a solution to. If you can condemn a person you should also make sure are not more of the problem yourself than the person you condemn. My one recommendation to Council would be they start immediately asking for letters of credit for site plans and if the site plan is not lived up to when the building is finished, then they cash the letter of credit and do the job. This would assist those who have built to site plans and get a better class of building.

Anything's possible, eh?

It's that time of year when Canadian baseball fans' eyes light up as visions of an all Canadian World Series dance in their heads.

With about 50 games left in the regular schedule, the Toronto Blue Jays are threatening the Baltimore Orioles in the American League's east division and the Montreal Expos are trying to stay in contention in the National League after being kicked out of the top spot in the east division by the Chicago Cubs.

It seems every season there comes a time when it looks like both of the Canadian teams might have a shot of taking their respective divisions and fans north of the 48th parallel start to get glassy-eyed at the thought of besting the Americans at their own national past-time.

Of course it's still a long-shot. The Jays can't seem to keep above the .500 mark long enough to look like World Series contenders and the Expos, after playing league-leading ball all summer, have started a tailspin which could put them out of the pennant race.

But for most, the prospect of a Fall Classic

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

played entirely in Canada is worth waiting, and praying, for. Neither Toronto nor Montreal have ever won a pennant, let alone the world series, but both have finished first in their divisions.

Both teams are capable of playing the kind of game necessary for post-season play.

A couple of years ago, during a brief moment when both the Jays and the Expos were leading their divisions, I read a fictional account of what an all-Canadian World Series might be like.

The author, obviously wishing to remain impartial, had the series tied at three games apiece when an early onslaught of winter forced the series to be postponed until spring.

Of course that was the in the pre-SkyDome days and before Montreal had finally managed to put a lid on Olympic Stadium.

Now that the Jays are out of Exhibition Stadium (or the Mistake by the Lake as it's fondly remembered) and the Big O is weather-proofed, the teams can stop worrying about having to fit their fielders with cleated snowshoes.

Somehow the notion of depriving the Americans of their Autumn Obsession would make up for the New York Islanders winning the Stanley Cup in the early 1980's, Wayne Getzky going to the Los Angeles Kings, and Ben Johnson losing his gold medal to Carl Lewis.

And if, by some divine blessing, the Expos and the Jays did finally get to play each other in October, regardless of who won the ramifications could reach well beyond the sports world.

Prime Minister Brian Mulroney could face President George Bush over issues like acid rain and free trade safe in the knowledge that if you beat the Americans at baseball you can beat them at anything.

And maybe Canadian sports fans could stop gazing south long enough to take a new interest in Canadian football.

Sure it's a dream, but anything's possible eh?

'I'm alone'

side with his left hand braced against the grass and the elbow in question jutting up in the air. The elbow is an ashey blue-grey and painfully distended. It looks like there's a billiard ball under skin.

So what do I do? Move him? Fat chance. Mister Pelto is a big guy. I'd never get him off the ground. Besides, didn't I see on Marcus Welby or St. Elsewhere that you should never move victims until you're sure of the extent of their injuries?

Where's the kid who went for the ambulance? Where's the ambulance? How did I get this far in life knowing so little about elementary first aid?

Then a miraculous thing happens. While I'm standing over Mister Pelto trying to shield his face from the blazing sun, I see out of the corner of my eye a young Yuppie-ish-looking chap dismounting from a ten speed bike. He is wearing racing gloves and spandex biking shorts. He comes over, bends down, murmurs in an aside, "It's alright, I'm a doctor." and--praise be--takes charge. Within seconds he has Mister Pelto propped up, resting comfortably and the elbow (which was dislocated, not broken) popped safely back in place. He asks Mister Pelto all the relevant questions. Does he have a heart condition? No. Does it hurt when he breathes. No. Can he extend his fingers? Flex his wrist? Yes and yes.

And then he asks Mister Pelto about his wife or kids or relatives and Mister Pelto says "I'm alone."

Just those two words. And that's what still ricochets around my skull when I remember the incident. Not the hideous heat, not the grotesque billiard ball elbow. Not the whiff of death or the miracle of the cycling doctor. Just Mister Pelto saying those two sad words: "I'm alone."

There are now six billion of us buzzing and crawling around the Beehive Earth--more human beings than there have ever been before. We live strung out side by side in subdivisions, stacked up in high rises above and below each other. We've never been more crowded.

And in many ways, we've never been more apart.

Ruth Major; Into Africa

Ruth Major will spend six months in Newfoundland and Africa

Ruth Major is going to spend the next six months breaking down stereotypes and trying to bring two countries closer together.

That may sound like a big job for a 17-year-old from Hall's Lake, but if enthusiasm counts for anything, Major will have no problem facing the challenges in front of her.

Major is participating in this year's Canadian World Youth (CWY) exchange program and on September 8, she's going to a coastal village in Newfoundland to be paired with a young person in Africa.

After spending three months living with their Canadian host families, Major, her African partner, and the rest of the group will head to the country of Malawi.

Malawi is located near the east coast of Africa, nestled between Zambia, Mozambique and Tanzania.

Major says her friends are surprised that she's going to Africa, but she easily defends the trip. "If you were travelling on your own, you wouldn't go to a remote village in Africa. Africa is something special," she says. "The culture is so different, and that's what I want to learn about."

As part of their preparation for the trip, Major says CWY participants are supposed to begin to learn the language before they go over. But because there are six or seven dialects spoken in Malawi, Major was told by the group coordinator to wait until she actually gets into the community. Major became interested in the CWY program after hearing a former participant, Shona Ross, speak to the high school students about her experiences. Major said she wanted to apply for the program but was determined to finish school first.

On the application form for the program, there is an opportunity to choose which area of the world you would like to visit. Major put down "anywhere."

"I just wanted to go somewhere, learn something and maybe contribute something. Most people had choices, I just put anywhere at all."

When she found out she would be exchanging with participants from Africa, Major said she imagined visiting places like those found in the pages of National Geographic, with isolated villages of grass huts. "But after half-an-hour of thinking about it I was more excited about Africa than I would have been about any other place," she says.

Since that time, Major has learned a little more about her destination including some of the customs in Malawi that she will have to be sensitive to.

Most of the men in the county, even the very poor, own at least one suit of clothes and wear them at all times except when working in the fields. Given this pride in their appearance, they have a hard time understanding the Western fashion of 'dressing down' by wearing tattered, ripped and faded clothes. They find it insulting that North Americans would dress in poor fashion when they can afford to buy better clothes.

Some of the county's sheep will be feeling a bit cooler after they were sheered Saturday to make wool, which was later woven into attractive garments. (Above) These ladies, dressed in traditional garb, displayed the art of weaving throughout the day. (Right) The Shriners added some Arabian flair to the parade.

Sinc Nesbitt's Belgian Mares captured top honours in the registered mare competition.

Oh, what a fair!

By Friday afternoon the final touches of preparation for the Haliburton County Fair were completed and everything was set for an outstanding three days of friendly competition and outright fun. The carnival rides lit up the grounds Friday evening and the delightful squeel of children's laughter and the sweet scent of fresh whipped candy floss was carried through the warm night air.

The perfect weather lasted through the night, setting the stage for another day of excitement at the grounds and in the streets of Minden. Dozens of colourfully decorated floats and marching band paraded from the old IGA, through town and into the fair grounds, bringing in their wake the hundreds who had lined the route.

Victoria-Haliburton MP Bill Scott, along with Minden Reeve Ray Moore, County Warden Keith Tallman and Fair president Wayne Cox, welcomed the crowds to the grounds. They were invited to enjoy the exhibits, competitions and the live music that echoed through the sloping greens.

This year's fair packed 125 years of experience into a brief three days, resulting in one of the best—if not the best—fair in its history.

Ray Moore and Keith Tallman wave to the crowds.

Bill Scott, MP, took a seat in Don and Molly Freeman's carriage while awaiting the start of the parade.

Major looks forward to her visit to Malawi

Among the women of Malawi, Major says the dress is more modest than that sported in Canada, wearing skirts that go no higher than the knee.

As well as observing the local customs, Major also wants to participate in some of the work done around the village. She says the women take part in most of the work done by the men in the home, garden and fields, "like carrying water on their heads. It would be great to experience that, if they'd let me."

During a pre-orientation weekend held in Toronto, Major spoke to a girl who was involved in an exchange to Africa. The girl told Major that she enjoyed her time in Africa more than her time in Canada and described the people as "very up-beat and friendly."

Major was told that African host families immediately welcome their Canadian visitors into their homes and treat them as one of the family. The girl told her that, "on the rare occasion when they had meat for dinner, she would be served first and get the most."

The prospect of journeying to a distant land is a little frightening, admits Major, but the closer her departure gets, the more excited she becomes. "I can't wait to get over there."

An already excitable and hyper person, Major says the more she talks about the trip, the more the reality of the adventure sinks in. She is unable to contain her excitement as she twists and fidgets in her seat and speaks in quick enthusiastic outbursts about her expectations.

When she was at the pre-orientation weekend in Toronto, Major said she got so exhilarated, "I was ready to bounce out of my seat." She says it seemed like the other participants were acting subdued but, "I guess they were just normally excited and I was over-excited."

Some of Major's friends thought she was going to Malawi to teach African people the "right" way to live, but she says the intent of the trip is entirely different than that. "We're not going as teachers, we're going as students to see what we can learn. We can't go there thinking our way is the right way."

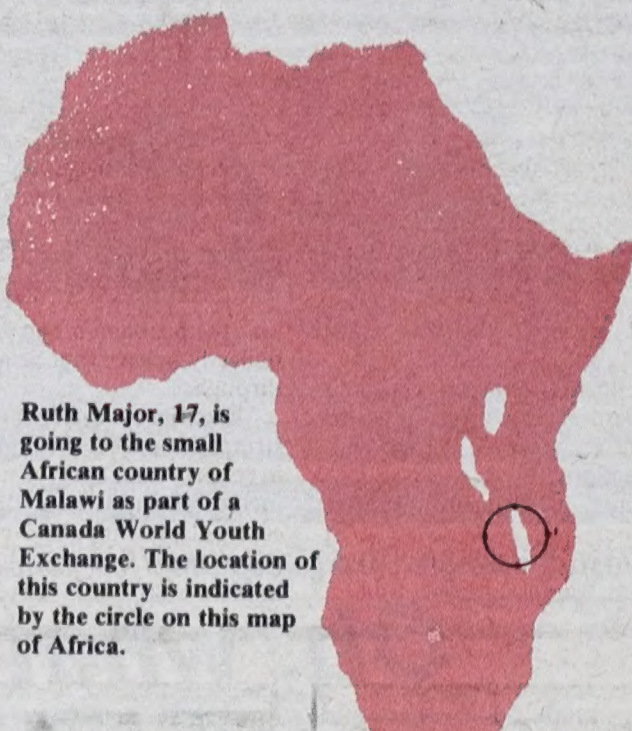

As well as breaking down stereotypes of people from other cultures, Major says the experience is also going to teach her about fellow Canadians.

When meeting some of the other participants from Ontario, Major says she was shocked at the variety of people who are involved in the program. She met one guy with spiked hair who was the sort of person she would have avoided had she met him in the street. But when she started talking to him he turned out to be "one of the nicest people you'd ever want to meet."

Despite the differences among the members of the group, Major said they all got along great. She says there were no cliques formed among people from the city or people from rural areas and "we all got to know each other on the same basis."

It's important that people who participate in the CWY exchange program are outgoing and eager to get to know new people, says Major. "You can't be a person who's going to sit and listen to a Walkman 24 hours a day. You have to form a close relationship with your partner. How can you cooperate if you don't know each other and get along?"

Ruth Major, 17, is going to the small African country of Malawi as part of a Canada World Youth Exchange. The location of this country is indicated by the circle on this map of Africa.

Getting involved in the program and spending every day of six months with the same person means giving up a lot of privacy and personal space, but as the youngest of eight children from a close family, Major is used to spending time with other people.

When she first told her parents about the program, Major says they weren't very enthusiastic about her spending six months away from home. Especially since three of those months will be spent on the far side of the African continent.

But Major told her parents that even if she didn't get accepted to the CWY program she planned to hold off going to college for a year to travel on her own. She also gave them information about the program to ease their fears.

Her parents have now accepted her decision to go on the trip and Major says her Dad has started bragging to his friends about her being chosen for the program. Her brothers and sisters have also taken an interest in the trip and have started to learn about Malawi.

One of the hardest aspects of the trip for Major, is the fact that she will be away from home during Christmas for the first time in her life. She hopes missing out on the family celebrations will be made easier because she will be discovering a new culture and there won't be any snow or other familiar trappings of the Christmas season.

Major's group arrives in Malawi from Newfoundland on December 12, and she says she will still be trying to catch her breath in her new surroundings and probably won't have much time to be home sick during the holidays. Usually during these trips, the Canadian participants make plans to get together on December 25 and hold a small Christmas celebration of their own. "I'll miss my family, but I think I'll survive," she says.

The CWY exchange was started in 1971 and involves exchanges from countries in Asia, Africa, Latin America and the Caribbean. It was founded by Jacques Herbert, the senator from Quebec who staged a hunger strike in the House of Commons to protest the cancellation of the Katimavik youth program.

The exchange program is jointly sponsored by the Canadian International Development Agency (CIDA) and the countries participating in the exchange.

One of the conditions of taking part in the exchange is that program participants, like Major, have to agree to give presentations about their experiences once they return to Canada. The presentations allow the individuals to share what they learned with people in their community and give the participants a chance to re-evaluate what the exchange program meant to them.

CWY exchanges were designed as a way to help improve understanding and cooperation between Canada and other countries on an individual level.

Upon arrival in Newfoundland, Major and the other six Canadians will be paired with their African participants, and the pairs will live with Canadian host families for the first three months of the exchange. They then travel to Malawi and live with host families there.

Besides weekly meetings with the other Canadians in her group, Major will spend all of her time with her host families and her African partner.

Major is keeping an open mind about the trip to Malawi. She doesn't want to begin the adventure with a lot of pre-conceived notions of what she might find. "I'll just take things as they come," she says.

Moths have flair for travelling, multiplying

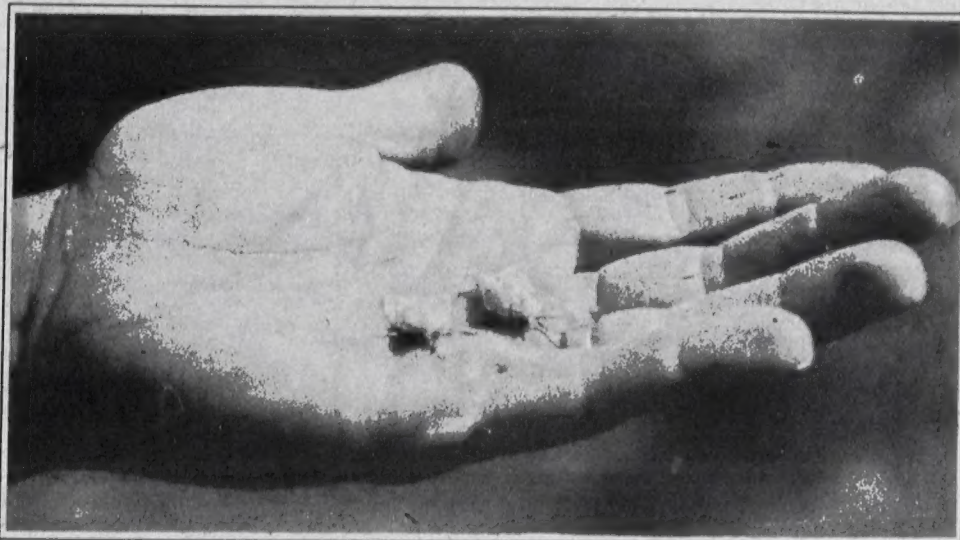

Haliburton County is hoping to join forces with a group of nine other counties in the war against Gypsy Moths.

Don Shortreed, who heads up the county's Forest Management Committee, said a special meeting was held on August 11 when it was decided that Haliburton should try to join the nine other counties that are involved in a co-operative spray program. In addition, Shortreed's committee has decided to hire a co-ordinator who will carry out the field work necessary for a spray program and will serve as liaison with the public.

The surprising appearance of a high concentration of Gypsy Moths around Gull Lake in Lutterworth Township alarmed area residents and caused the Forest Management Committee to start scrambling to provide some relief. Lou Cataford, whose property is overrun with the moths and whose trees are covered in their egg masses, was the first to sound the alarm. Shortreed, along with Lutterworth Reeve Carol Puffer and Deputy Reeve Jim McMahon and representatives from the Ministry of Natural Resources met at his property three weeks ago and were surprised at the magnitude of the infestation.

Another meeting was held last Friday to give John Anstey, the co-ordinator hired by the county, an opportunity to see the infestation. Anstey, who also co-ordinates the spray program for Hastings County, said he is confident a spray program can be initiated here in the spring.

If Haliburton is accepted into the co-op spray program for Gypsy Moths, much of the burden dealing with these insects will be lifted from the hands of local residents.

Whether or not Haliburton's request to join the co-operative is accepted remains to be seen, but Cataford is pleased with the county's action.

"It made my day," Cataford said after hearing the news from Shortreed. "It absolutely made it." He said he is pleased to see the ball is rolling and is confident that the problem is being looked after. "I honestly believe that he is going to pull it through."

Like the Forest Tent Caterpillars that stripped the trees throughout the county in recent years, the Gypsy Moths have an incredible appetite. Unlike the tent caterpillars, though, Gypsy Moths are not a native insect to this province and have few natural predators.

Since Gypsy Moths first appeared in Ontario, the Ministry of Natural Resources has attempted to control their spread by launching aerial spray programs over the worst hit areas. While the programs were successful in limiting the amount of damage to the trees in those areas, they were unsuccessful in controlling the spread.

Because they are so new to Haliburton County, the ministry is uncertain of how they will spread here or their potential for damage, says Brian Cross, Forest Management Supervisor with the ministry in Minden. The pattern in other areas demonstrates that the infestation will be limited to "shallow, rocky, scrubby ridges."

That pattern is holding true so far in the Gypsy Moths' presence in Haliburton. The area around Gull Lake where the infestation is worst, has the characteristic shallow soil and the presence of enough oak trees for the insects to flourish.

This is good news for most of Haliburton County, since it indicates the worst infestation will be confined to the Gull Lake area. The forecast isn't as bad for Haliburton as what was feared just a few years ago, says Cross. Initially, the thought was that the moths were making their way here, and once they arrived, the entire county would be overrun.

County takes leap to control infestation

True to their name, Gypsy Moths are capable of travelling great distances. In its caterpillar stage, the insect travels by climbing to the tops of trees, flinging itself into the air and spinning a web as it drops. The slightest breeze will then blow it to the next tree as it climbs back up the thread. They also travel by laying their eggs on cars, canoes, or tents and people unknowingly bring the unwelcome hitchhikers home with them.

The Co-operative Spray Program in which Haliburton hopes to become involved, makes it possible for private landowners to have their woodlots aerially sprayed with Bacillus thuringiensis (Bt) at a reduced cost. The purpose of this program is to limit the spread of the moths from "hot spots" to minimize damage to trees and to reduce the nuisance factor caused by these insects in recreational and residential areas.

Co-op program

Under the co-operative program the ministry provides grants to the nine counties (Hastings, Lennox and Addington, Frontenac, Lanark, Leeds and Grenville, Northumberland, Peterborough, Prince Edward and Renfrew) to develop and co-ordinate a spray program. Because there was no problem with Gypsy Moths in Haliburton County when this program was initiated in 1986, it was not included.

Anstey says the nine counties involved in the program would welcome Haliburton's participation. The ministry has the final word, though, and Cross says that decision will be made some time this week.

If Haliburton is now accepted into the County Spray Program, 80 percent of the cost of hiring a co-ordinator will be subsidized by the ministry. In addition, Gypsy Moth control program co-ordinator John Anstey (left) had an opportunity to see the extent of the infestation around Lou Cataford's Home on Gull Lake last Friday. The meeting was organized by Haliburton County's Forest Management Committee Chairman Don Shortreed (third from left) and involved representatives from the Ministry of Natural Resources, including Gary Clements (right) and Brian Cross.

It's likely that a spray program, using the biological insecticide Bt, will be launched over the worst hit areas next spring landowners will be subsidized for 75 percent of the cost of spraying.

According to Shortreed, there are another two years left in the term of this co-operative spray program. "We have until 1991, so there are two more spraying seasons left," he said.

The spraying season for Gypsy Moths begins in mid-May and continues through to mid-June. Prior to this, the co-ordinator works along with the ministry to map the individual and group applications. During the spraying season, the co-ordinator is involved in the aerial spraying application.

The spray to be used is Bt, a substance that occurs naturally in the soil. The spray is applied to the leaves of trees, which are then eaten by the caterpillars. Once ingested, Bt releases a toxic protein that breaks down the digestive system of the caterpillar and paralyzes its gut. The caterpillar will then die within five days.

Shortreed says it's important that some action be taken to combat these insects. "We've got a problem down there," he said, referring to the Gull Lake area. "We can't just sit back and let it happen. There could be more hot spots next spring."

One of the trademarks of the Gypsy Moth is its appetite. Although they prefer oak, birch and poplar trees, they will eat just about anything. They've been observed feeding on 500 species of plants and have been known to eat other things like surveyor's tapes or foam coffee cups. When fully grown, a caterpillar can eat up to 90 square centimetres of leaves in a day. "It's amazing how fast they can strip an oak tree," says Cataford. He says trees that are 10 to 12 inches in diameter can be defoliated overnight.

In order for a spray program to go ahead, there has to be full support from all property owners within a spray block of about ten acres. If people want spraying done, they must fill out a request form, which will be passed to Anstey to determine if there is sufficient interest in spraying an area. These forms are now available from Haliburton County Clerk, Gary McKnight.

Big fun under the Big Top at Stanhope

Local residents were treated to a traditional brand of fun and excitement when the Kelly Miller Brothers circus performed at the Stanhope Community Centre on August 12.

Trapeze artists, jugglers, clowns and animal acts were presented in a spectacular three-ring setting and the audience had a busy time keeping up with the fast-paced action occurring all around them.

Outside the big top, waiting crowds were entertained by pony and elephant rides, and gobbled large amounts of popcorn, peanuts and cotton candy.

A sideshow was performed between performances and featured a fire-eater, a contortionist, a magic show, and a woman who lit lightbulbs with her bare hands while allowing electricity to flow through her body.

The circus was sponsored by the Haliburton Highlands Chamber of Commerce.

Six clubs play in Jitney

The Minden Lawn Bowling Club celebrated its 10th anniversary by holding a tournament and hosting teams from Beaverton, Lindsay, Victoria Place, Fenelon Falls and Bobcaygeon August 11.

The teams were marched in to the music of the bagpipes with Piper Lloyd Brown doing the honours.

The three Minden teams took first, second and third. Places followed by Victoria Place fourth and Fenelon Falls fifth.

The team of Cy and Gala Heal and Ross Farr took first overall with Howie and Gerry Ryan and Norm Shivas coming second and Jim and Helen Burton and Marion Reid placing third.

Over 100 bowlers, members and guests sat down to lunch served by May Sinclair and her many helpers, followed by speeches and the drawing of many prizes donated by members and local merchants.

The day was greatly enjoyed by all and the club wishes to thank all those who pitched in to help make this even a resounding success.

Speech service will cost $450 per week

A change in funding procedure for speech pathology services is going to end up costing the Haliburton County Board of Education an additional $13,000 dollars a year.

Haliburton's Superintendent of Education, Dale Robinson, reported to the board last week that the service, which had been provided by the Five Counties Children's Centre in Peterborough for free will now cost $450 a week.

The speech pathologists are responsible for diagnosing students who have speech or language problems and recommending a therapy program to be carried out in the school.

Robinson said Haliburton County requires the services of two pathologist spending half a day each in area schools.

The Five Counties Children's Centre serves Haliburton, Victoria, Peterborough, Hastings and Northumberland counties and is funded by the Ministry of Health and private donations. The Rotary Clubs in both Minden and Haliburton contribute to the Centre.

Last year, Haliburton was the only county of the five still receiving free speech pathology services. This year the Centre announced that the Haliburton County Board of Education will have to assume the costs as well.

Robinson says the board knew the cut-back was coming, and although the exact amount of money needed was not known when the board developed its budget, the additional cost has been accounted for.

Many school boards have started to hire their own speech pathologists to serve on staff, but Robinson said Haliburton's smaller student population doesn't justify that move here.

Speech problems are broken down into two broad classifications; those considered to be a medical problem and those considered to be an educational problem.

Robinson says children with cleft palates or stuttering would be dealt with by the medical field and not treated by the school.

The school system is responsible for helping children who have troubles understanding what they read or hear or have problems expressing themselves.

Currently 75 students in Haliburton County rely on speech and language therapy. Robinson says the speech pathologists from Peterborough are needed to diagnose new problems as well as reviewing the progress made by students already in the program. The pathologists make recommendations which are carried out by John Miller the board's speech therapist.

Kathy Balch, a financial manager for the Five Counties Children's Centre, says the change in funding was due in part to school board's wanting more control over the speech pathology services available to them.

She says the centre could not afford to offer the service free to Haliburton and still maintain the involvement required by the board's needs.

She said the Centre's funding from the government has only been increased by an amount equal to inflation, so the centre can't afford to meet the needs of boards who wish to expand the speech pathology services in the schools.

By contracting out the Centre's staff pathologists to the different counties, Balch says the school boards can determine their own requirements and arrange for the necessary visits.

It's difficult for a school board to develop an entire speech department to accommodate one staff pathologist, especially since the Centre already has the necessary resources and staff, says Balch. There's a shortage of qualified speech pathologists in Ontario and many boards are having trouble filling new positions.

Residents wary of extension's impact on lake owners on Lake Kashagawigamog expressed concern about the quality of water in the lake and the implications of increasing the capacity of the sewage treatment plant.

The discussion surrounding the upgrading of the plant began several years ago, after it was suggested a sewer line extension could be built along the north shore of Lake Kashagawigamog to service the resorts in the area. The line would be for commercial properties only and would assist the large resorts in disposing of the sewage and allow for increased expansion of the tourist facilities.

The consultants studied a number of alternatives to accommodate the proposed feed from the resorts and the anticipated growth in the village of Haliburton. In addition to the expansion of the existing plant to meet the need, the consultants also considered building a new sewage treatment plant, located near the intersection of Highway 121 and North Kashagawigamog Drive to handle either the sewage from the resorts or a new plant in that location to take both village and resort sewage.

The report found that expanding the existing facility at its present location offered the best alternative. It would be least costly and since a plant was already operating in that location, would reduce any objections to the introduction of a new facility at another site.

The cost of expanding the present facility is estimated at $2.3 million. This amount represents the capital outlay needed to construct the treatment plant, with upgrading to the existing facility. It does not take into account the cost of constructing the pipeline to service the resorts along the north shore. Cost of the pipeline would be shared by the users. Upon approval of the plant project, the Ministry of Environment would pay for 75% of the capital costs with the municipality responsible for the remaining portion.

The present plant now discharges its effluent into the Drag River just north of the Highway 121 bridge.

The other alternatives considered by the consultants, with their associated costs, included: expansion of the existing plant with an outlet into Grass Lake $2.8 million; constructing an entire new plant to serve the properties west of the village while maintaining the existing plant to serve the village $3.9 million; constructing an entirely new plant to serve both the village and the resorts in a new location $4.1 million; and expansion of the existing sewage treatment plant with the effluent being piped to the Burnt River $5 million.

The meeting was told that not only would the expansion of the existing facility to meet the anticipated demand be the best economic choice, the plant would also meet the stricter criteria of the MOE for effluent discharge.

While charts and figures provided by the consultants indicated that the present plant was operating within the present MOE guidelines, and factors other than the sewage treatment plant had a greater impact on the quality of water in the lakes downstream, some property owners in attendance were not convinced this was the case.

Several of those in attendance wondered why, if the plant was operating so well, water quality in the lakes downstream has deteriorated markedly over the past few years. One member of the audience commented, "Your figures (provided by the consultants) say one thing, but my eyes and nose tell me another." He said that excessive weed growth and algae blooms over the past summers indicated that all was not well in Lake Kashagawigamog. Another property owners said he had experienced increased incidents of rashes, ear infections and skin irritations which he said local doctors had attributed to water borne factors.

The consultants countered by saying their figures did not indicate a major deterioration in water quality in testing carried out in 1976, 1977 and 1985. They also indicated that the operation of the sewage treatment plant could not be blamed for the deterioration.

However, property owners on Kashagawigamog and Canning Lake, the next lake in the chain, said their findings indicate otherwise and they attributed the change to the introduction of effluent from the treatment plant.

Reeve Murray Fearrey, obviously upset by the objections raised by the property owners, told the meeting that before the plant was constructed in 1976, there were incidents of raw sewage flowing directly into the water courses and that the sewage treatment plant eliminated that situation. He said the latest upgrading will improve the quality of the effluent. "We're not spending all this money to increase the pollution of the lake," he said, "we're doing it to improve the effluent now being discharged." He challenged the property owners to be constructive in their comments saying that every delay would lead to additional costs and a greater pollution threat. He said if the municipality isn't allowed to upgrade the present system the lakes could deteriorate to the point where the property owners, "wouldn't be able to give their cottages away if they wanted to."

The full text of the consultant's report is available for review at the Dysart municipal office. Anyone interested in commenting on the findings has until September 10 to submit their written statements.

Great catch

Penny Harrison of Carnarvon landed this 30-pound Chinook Salmon while fishing in Gord McWalter's charter boat on July 30 in Lake Ontario. She hooked the giant at 9:12 a.m. and landed it 38 minutes later. Harrison also caught a nice rainbow trout during the trip that weighed in at 10.6 pounds.

Hustlers tourney a success

The Rockcliffe Tavern Hustlers held their annual Fastball Tournament August 12, 13 and 14. It was considered a huge success.

The Bracebridge Bucks edged out the Greenbank Gamblers 3-1 to capture top honours and the Toronto Royals defeated the Haliburton Warriors 2-0 to win the Consolation prize.

Bracebridge pitcher, Mike Crawford, won the MVP of the tournament allowing only one run in the final and hitting a three-run homer which proved to be the difference in the game.

The Hustlers would like to thank Larry Nichols, Dempster's bread,, Alex Little Sr., Gord Paisley, Joan Alger, The Lions Club, Sheldon Stevenson, Ivan Ingram and the Parks department, Minden Fire Department, Dave Willis, Rockcliffe Tavern and finally the players' wives who all contributed to the success of the tournament.

Appliances no bargain at garage sales

Garage sales can be a lot of fun, but beware. The Canadian Standards Association warns that electrical appliances you first think are a bargain could turn out to be a disaster.

According to CSA's Audits and Investigation group, a woman bought a used electric blanket at a garage sale. That night she let her eight-year-old son use it. The blanket caught fire, but luckily the boy escaped uninjured. Investigation showed that the blanket was 28 years old and the internal wiring's insulation had severely deteriorated.

In another case, a couple purchased a coffee maker. It looked like a modern unit, but the first time they used it the appliance caught fire. Investigation revealed that the coffee maker had been improperly serviced and that it was 12 years old.

What do these have in common?

Block Parents, Water Witching, Parliament & Outer Space

What could these subjects possibly have in common, you ask? Well, they are just a few of the new items available through your local branch of the Haliburton County Public Library.

Can there be anyone out there who doesn't know that we have over 500 16mm films and access to over 10,000 more through our AV-NET computer system?

We continue to add as many new films as we can each year and have been recently developing our holdings of VHS cassettes. While we do not have an extensive collection, we can borrow from others in the Southern Ontario Library Service -- Trent area.

For those with an interest in dinosaurs, we suggest Dinosaurs: Remains To Be Seen which explores the reasons for their disappearance from the face of the earth. Then there is the environment David Suzuki considers the Greenhouse Effect and other threats to our planet in Environmental Alert. For those with concerns over nuclear power, there is Nuclear Power: The Hot Debate. Outer space is considered in Space Trek and for those with a quest to learn about the present, we would recommend The Canadian Parliamentary Video which will tell you more than you ever wanted to know about the parliamentary system.

Other new addition include How Fish Swim, RADAR: Visions From Space, Water Witching, and how it works, Block Parents Are Good Friends with Mr. Dressup and finally, The Killing Ground, Canada's victorious moments during the "14-18" war.

While films are distributed from the County Library Headquarters, every branch has a complete listing of films in our own collection and the main catalogue for the entire SOLS-Trent Service Area is readily at hand.

We even have projectors and screens for those that want to explore the world in their living room without leaving home!

Check out your closest branch of the Haliburton County Public Library and see what is new...for you!

KRCA makes presentation to county

Haliburton County Council will soon have the opportunity to learn first-hand about the proposal to extend the boundaries of the Kawartha Region Conservation Authority.

Two Victoria County townships, Bexley and Somerville, are applying to have the boundaries of the authority extended north along the Gull and Burnt Rivers, to include more of their municipalities.

The authority staff is studying the proposal to see if the expansion should include portions of Haliburton County.

Bryce Young, the Reeve of Somerville and one of the key people in the expansion application, has been in contact with Haliburton politicians and wants to arrange a presentation on the proposal for County Council.

Young is planning to contact Haliburton Warden Keith Tallman to investigate the possibility of having conservation authority manager Ian Macnab outline the details of the plan, and the role of the authority, to county council.

It has also been suggested that instead of appearing before County Council, a public information meeting could be held so Macnab might make the presentation before any interested people.

Young says the expansion application is temporarily in limbo until he is able to report back to the conservation authority's board of directors about the potential interest in expanding the boundaries into Haliburton. Young says he hasn't heard any really negative comments about the expansion plan so far, and he believes that the Haliburton politicians are willing to listen to the idea.

He says depending on what sort of interest there is in the idea the conservation authority will either proceed with the application or drop the idea. "There's no half way."

Some members of Haliburton County council have said recently that if the conservation authority can't produce definite headway in the fight to maintain water levels in Haliburton's reservoir lakes, there's no point in joining.

The Haliburton Highlands Water Management Advisory Committee has strongly recommended that joining the authority would be a positive step.

Once the authority's expanded boundaries have been decided upon, the plan will need the approval of two-thirds of involved municipalities in order to be finalized. This year the cost of belonging to the conservation authority amounted to $3.41 for every ratepayer owning land in the authority's jurisdiction.

The authority assists municipalities with water management, flood plain mapping, assessing environmental impact of development and education involving conservation practices.

Golf tournament benefits centre

The Five Counties Children's Centre will benefit from a golf tournament to be set at the Beaverbrook Golf Club on Sept. 10.

The tournament, which is in celebration of the club's 50th anniversary, will see from 50 to 60 golfers teeing off in shotgun style at 11 a.m. that day for 18 holes of play. Since this is a handicap tournament, everyone has an equal shot at the first prize of a trip for two to Las Vegas.

This is the first year for this tournament, and club owner Dave Stevens says there is a possibility that it will become an annual event. "Right now we're just shooting for this year, but we may make it an annual thing."

An entry fee of $30 covers the green fees and a barbecue and corn roast. Donations and pledges from area businesses are being accepted to cover the prizes.

Board must now pay for service

The Haliburton Board of Education has adopted new procedures to deal with students who misbehave on school buses.

The guidelines were approved by the trustees at last week's board meeting and will be included into the transportation policy.

On a student's first offence, the bus driver will give a verbal warning that the student's behavior is unacceptable and will record the warning.

On the second offence, the driver will complete a written student behavior report to be delivered to the principal by the student. School officials will discuss the problem with the student and attempt to correct the situation. The official will then sign and return the report to the driver before the student is admitted on the bus. The student's parents will be provided with a copy of the report.

School officials may suspend riding privileges of one or more days. Parents and drivers will be notified by telephone and in writing and the suspension will remain in force until a satisfactory meeting has been held with a school official.

If a driver feels bus safety is impaired by a student's conduct, the student may be told to report to the principal and the driver will also report to the principal's office. Should an incident occur on the way home that the driver feels could escalate the next morning, the driver may phone a school official. The principal may request parents to transport students the next morning and attend a meeting of those involved.

Congratulations are in order for happy birthdays for Marg Miller and Ken Alger on August 20th.

Kendra Kellett from Bridgenorth has been visiting with grandmother Gladys Kellett.

Tracy Congdon received many lovely gifts at her wedding shower at the home of Beryl Congdon last Wednesday evening.

Winners at the Club 35 euchre on August 14th were - 50-50 - Eileen Stiver, most lone hands - Bill Kleinschmidt, high lady - Eileen Stiver, high man - Joe Lumsden, others - Jean Burk, Charlie Denham and Reta McRae. We had a good attendance with many new visitors.

Richard and Laura Kirkwood enjoyed a trip to Peterborough last week. They attended the re-union of the students of the class of 1930-31 of the Peterborough Normal School. The festivities were held at the Rockhaven Hotel.

Visitors recently at the home of Mary Currah included Wilfred and Pauline Lindsay of Little Britain, Roy and Joan Fice of Oshawa, Russ and Lil Lindsay of Uxbridge, Helen Byrnes and granddaughter of Kinmount and Murray McGuire from Halls Lake.

Mary Currah recently spent the weekend with Russ and Lil Lindsay of Uxbridge where they attended the 13th family reunion. Charlie Welch kept house while Mary was away.

Margaret and Gordon Murchison visited me from Kitchener last Friday and we certainly enjoyed seeing the great display at the Flower Show at the Arena and a great cup of coffee.

Audrey and Bob Vick were in Lindsay last Saturday attending the Duncan-Rideout wedding.

Rocky and Jackie McElwain of Bowmanville visited with his mother Dorothy McElwain one day last week.

Bob and Audrey Vick were away one day last week and visited Julie and Bill Woolfrey at Bridgenorth and May Ralph at Peterborough.

For W.I. members - we are having our September meeting at 2 p.m. on the regular date, September 20th.

Some of us enjoy radiant health and some of us find going about our daily business or doing the household chores anything but easy - we are so soon tired, and what others do quickly requires from us great effort. There are others who are ill in home or hospital, and smiling along is very hard for them.

Here, for all such, is a little 17th century prayer which may help:

Lord, teach me the art of patience while I am well, and give me the use of it when I am sick.

It's your licence to thrills. Just look for our low summer prices in the windshields of thousands of new cars and trucks in stock.

Energy agency boasts credibility

by Bill Scott, MP
Victoria-Haliburton

When it comes to a sober assessment of energy policy, few organizations match the International Energy Agency for credibility.

And that group has recently singled out Canada for praise, saying market-oriented policy shifts in the past five years have allowed Canada to ensure a secure energy supply for the future.

A little history: Back in November of 1974, when the sudden actions of a few oil-producing giants made energy security appear uncertain, the International Energy Agency was created to defend the collective economic and energy security interests of its 21 industrial, oil-consuming members.

To that end, the IEA devised ways to share energy in times of shortage and to co-ordinate energy policy among member nations so as to promote a stable and predictable energy marketplace. Among other things, member nations are encouraged to look into oil conservation measures and indeed, beyond fossil fuels altogether as a way to ensure energy security.

Within those operating parameters, Canada has performed well. In its annual report called "Energy Policies and Programmes of IEA Countries," the IEA said: "The increased open market orientation of energy policy is bringing Canadian gas and oil markets into being one of the most open markets in IEA countries... Deregulation has proceeded and the Free Trade Agreement with the United States can be expected to have important long-term effects."

Specifically, the IEA argues in its report that the effect of free trade and deregulation will create greater energy security through a more dependable investment climate. That investment in the oil, gas and electricity industries could amount to $250 billion over the next 20 years.

The IEA panel also welcomed increased consultation between Ottawa and the provincial governments, and it recommended such talks continue.

Above all, the IEA reported that Canada's current approach to energy policy encourages flexibility in the system; and in a world of continuing political and economic uncertainty, flexibility is exactly what Canada needs to survive.

Pick Up And Pitch-In

Back to school too soon

Are you getting depressed about the onset of 'Back To School' Season? They just can't let you forget can they? Everywhere you go there are posters displaying 'Back To School' this and 'Back To School' that. Well I am here tell you that it isn't over yet. Abby and I aren't letting summer go down without a fight.

In order to celebrate all of the fun that we have had this summer we are having a Play Day Party. Wednesday's Activity Centre will consist of special activities like relays and races and challenges that we designed earlier for our fun Olympics. We will also be having many new challenges just to keep you on your toes. We welcome any parents who could come and play or cheer on the children as well as anyone else interested in getting involved. Treats will be available for everyone after the festivities. Everyone had a great time at our last Play Day and this time we are ready to end the season with a BANG. Be there or be square! (Activities will run rain or shine.)

This will be my last column and I would like to say that it has been a great experience and I hope that you enjoyed reading about our activities each week. I would once again like to thank Mike Maybee, Wendy Ladurantaye, and Mary Wallace for being special guests to the program. Thank you to the parents for their support, especially Mrs. Poldas who always helps to lift morale.

It is impossible to pinpoint anyone in particular for the special mention bulletin this week. Everyone who spent the afternoon making box cars and trains and spaceships deserves mention for the incredible level of creativity you displayed. More importantly Abby and I would just like to thank all of the children who participated in Summer Fun '89 for sharing part of their summer with us. We had fun and we hope that you did too. Don't worry, even the Summer Funster has realized that the end of summer doesn't mean the end of fun. Have a great year.

Several animals up for adoption

The following animals are available for adoption at the Minden Animal Clinic. For more information contact Dr. Peter Bennett at 286-2919.

- a ten to 12 week old male puppy, almost house trained, brown with black and white markings. Will likely be a medium sized dog.

- a Husky Collie cross, found in Lutterworth Township wearing a brown leather collar and flea collar. Brown with black on the back and a little white, female, long hair, medium size.

Dorset Acid Rain Report

The following report on precipitation events was recorded at the Ministry of Environment acid rain testing station in Dorset and compiled by Environment Canada.

This report covers the week of July 31 - and again there was no precipitation.

Environmental damage is usually observed in sensitive areas regularly receiving precipitation with pH less than 4.7. Readings of 4.0 pH or less are considered dangerous. The lower the reading, the more acidic the precipitation.

Surprised, dismayed at sexist cartoon

Editor:

I am writing in response to the cartoon which appeared in your August 14 edition. I was very surprised and dismayed that a newspaper of your caliber would consider printing such an inappropriate cartoon. I found this drawing very offensive and totally lacking in humour. It was the type of male locker room humour of the 1950's and totally inappropriate in 1989 when women are striving for equal rights and respect.

I consider this sexist cartoon very insulting and very violent. The time of sexist humour towards women (and men) pertaining to the way we are built is simply no longer acceptable.

Thank you.

NOTICE PUBLIC MEETING THE COUNTY OF HALIBURTON ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT STUDY

The County of Haliburton is now in the midst of preparing an Economic Development Study, the purpose of which is to form a strategic plan that will set up a course for development and economic growth in the County over the upcoming decade.

Keir and Muller, the consultants hired to carry out the study have now completed a review of the issues and constraints that face the County.

A public meeting is being held to provide County residents with an opportunity to hear and discuss the findings of the study to date and to make their views known on what initiatives and actions they would like to see in a strategic plan.

The date, time and location of the meeting are set out below.

Date: Thursday, August 24, 1989
Time: 7:30 p.m.
Location: The Haliburton County Office,
Newcastle Street,
Minden, Ontario.

Further information can be obtained from Gary McKnight at (705) 286-1333.

Your input is encouraged. We look forward to meeting with you.

18th ANNUAL THE Heineken YARD

THE RACE ORGANISING COMMITTEE, on behalf of our sponsors

Heineken Breweries and Amstel Brewery Canada Ltd. with to thank everyone in the community who offered their help and support to the 18th Annual Heineken Yard including:

All the spectators who lined the route to cheer the runners into town as well as the community and council of Anson, Hindon and Minden, Sgt. Steve Adam and the Minden OPP detachment, Dick Schell, Rob Luke and the Minden Ambulance Crew, Brad Bradamore and Elaine McRae, Official Starter Peter Stribling, Steve Hunt, Steve Bederich, Scott Sullivan, Doug McMillan and the staff and campers at Onondaga Camp, Jeremy Andrews, Scott Merrick and the rest of the staff and campers from Kilcoo Camp, Minden Race Co-ordinator Dave Willis, Murray Beetlestone, Harry Pye and the entire Rockcliffe Snack Bar and Tavern Staff, Minden Rent-All, John Cooper, Phil Graham, Lee Oster, Cec Jones, and Reg Argyle of the Amateur Radio Club, Len Thornet and family whose water tap is indispensable for parched competitors, Jack Brezina, Susan Wilson, and the rest of the staff at The Times, and Clayton Cameron.

Air force trainees to reunite

Calling all Empire Air Trainees from Minden. Do you remember this famous photograph?

If you do then you are probably eligible to attend the world's largest reunion of former Empire (Commonwealth) Air Trainees to be held in Perth, Western Australia between April 22 and 30, 1990.

The two Avro Ansons pictured had collided in mid-air over New South Wales in Australia in 1940.

Despite incredible odds, Len Fuller, the pilot of the top aircraft successfully landed both Ansons -- only to be knocked over two weeks later while riding his bicycle!

That picture, and the sad aftermath, will bring back many memories to the more than 250,000 men who were selected for air-crew training under the Empire Air Training Scheme (Plan) from 1940 to 1945.

Although training was tough, close friendships were formed between trainees of many different lands. They were times of great fellowship and hilarious escapades, and also of great emotional sadness when their 'mates' went away and never came back.

This photo shows the two Avro Ansons after the spectacular mid-air collision in New South Wales in 1940. Surprisingly, the pilot managed to land the two planes and walk away from the mess.

Now for the first time in 50 years, an attempt is being made to get together as many as possible of the surviving former trainees from Australia, Great Britain, Canada, New Zealand, South Africa, India and other Commonwealth countries.

Several thousand former trainees are expected to wing their way in to Perth, Western Australia for this very moving Golden Anniversary Reunion - a reunion which will mean a great deal to those who gave their all during the Second World War.

For details, contact the Honorary Secretary of the Royal Australian Air Force Association, P.O. Box 515, South Perth, Western Australia or telephone Australia (09) 474 1699.

Did You Know?

by Doreen Hawman

Are you aware that as a senior and a newcomer to Ontario you may apply for hospital and drug coverage through the Ontario Health Insurance Plan.

If you have reached age 65 and have lived in Ontario for one full year, you could be eligible for health coverage under the Ontario Health Insurance Plan, without charge. An application form must be submitted.

If you are 65 and are not eligible to receive an Old Age Security Pension but have lived in Ontario for the past 12 months, you may qualify to receive an Ontario Seniors Citizen Privilege Card. This will enable you to purchase selected prescription drugs without charge. Again you must apply.

For further information regarding OHIP or if you require an application, contact your nearest Information Centre, located in Haliburton and Minden. Phone 457-2733 Monday - Friday or 286-4100 Tuesdays.

Starting August 28th, the Minden Centre will be open Monday and Tuesday of each week.

Library Corner

Opera Ghost really did exist

The Opera Ghost really did exist. He was not - as was long ago believed - a creature of the imagination of artists, superstition of managers or the absurd and impressionable brains of the young ladies of the ballet, the cloak-room attendants, or the concierge. No: he existed in flesh and blood, though he assumed all the outward characteristics of a real phantom, that is to say, of a shade Gaston Leroux originally captured the story of the Phantom of the Opera in 1911 and it is this point that he emphasises in his introduction to the story of a half-crazed musician hiding in the rabbit-warren interior of the Paris Opera House and helping the career of a young and beautiful singer.

The story is regarded to today as being one of the most famous of terror stories in the same company as Dracula and even Frankenstein.

What is perhaps most unique is that the book itself has gone largely ignored over the years, being supported by the various movies of the same name, and now, the stage version with music by Andrew Lloyd Webber.

The book can stand on its own. And anyone wishing some additional background material before seeing the show will find the tale enthralling. Of course, it's available through your closest branch of the Haliburton County Public Library. And anyone who simply wants a good scare will find it, and some small measure of enjoyment as well.

May we suggest that you keep the lights on when you read it?

Oh yes, there's always something new at your local branch of the library.

'Keep it natural,' cottagers told at meeting

"Keep it natural" was the message conveyed to cottagers at the first ever Cottagers and Conservation seminar, held at the Leslie M. Frost Natural Resources Centre on Friday, August 18.

The Ministry of Natural Resources invited executives of cottagers' associations from the Muskoka-Haliburton-Hastings staff from three districts, the Regional Office and Main Office gave presentations, answered questions and discussed conservation issues in cottage country. The seminar was completely booked, with more than 100 participants, representing at least 50 cottagers' associations, attending.

"People spend their holidays in the area because of the fresh air, clean water and the fish, wildlife and other natural resources", said Bruce Sandilands, Regional Biologist for Algonquin Region. "But the sheer numbers of cottagers and some of their activities have the potential for adversely affecting the natural environment. They could be loving cottage country to death."

Sandilands said that by becoming more informed about ecology, conservation activities and government regulations, cottagers can do their part to keep cottage properties natural and maintain the values they have come to enjoy.

Topics at the seminar included fisheries ecology, living with wildlife, shoreline development, hands-on conservation projects, and the Community Fisheries and Community Wildlife Involvement Programs.

Ministry staff also took time to describe how to "work with the system". Approval procedures for work around the cottage are designed to extend a conservation ethic to cottage lot development, said Henk Rietveld, Regional Fisheries Biologist for Algonquin Region. "By co-operating with conservation agencies, cottagers can help maintain a quality natural environment for their children to enjoy."

Shuffle board serves up piping hot tea at Home

Hello, for another week of Sr. League news. The tea party Thursday was provided and served by the Senior Shuffle Board Group from Minden, followed by a sing song. Mrs. H. Deacon played the piano. The Residents thank them sincerely.

Mr. Tom McAllister came in the evening to call bingo. More came to play which makes it more interesting. Thank you Tom.

Friday we had fun and fitness in the morning and happy hour from 2-4 p.m. Toos Reid and Rose Barry played their guitars and sang. Thank you, you were enjoyed greatly.

Jean Taylor visited her niece Saturday. Saturday Verna Jarvis had visitors to call on her, Mr. & Mrs. William Stuart from Cameron, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Drinkwater from Oshawa.

Sunday morning Terry took me to the eighty fourth anniversary of the West Guilford Baptist Church. All the members who attended when I went there are gone and a new generation is involved now. Mr. Fielding gave a partial history of the church and some of those who attended gave their help. Two people who were missionaries to India sang several beautiful songs for us. Rev. Benson took the service.

Congratulations to Irene McKelvey who had a birthday August 13th. Birthday wishes Irene from all the Residents.

Chapel service was taken by Rev. John Burgess Sunday evening. Sunday morning Lucy and Mary Burgess had a visit from Mr. & Mrs. Les Ven Dewall and Miss Joan Dewall of Whitby.

Monday afternoon Residents Council was held in the Arts and Crafts room. Gary McKnight, Acting Administrator, explained what was being done about requests we had made before and helped with a few new problems we brought up. Ada Lewis who is our Treasurer is on the sick list at present.

We have two new Residents at Hyland Crest, Robina Thomas and Mercedes Pretty. We hope they will be happy.

Monday night Ena Marion and her husband York showed the movies. The first one was "Sweet Water" and the second one "From the Mountains to the Sea." They were both good. Thanks for coming.

We are glad to have Doris back from a weeks vacation and a couple of days sick. Linda did a good job doing two jobs for us.

Tuesday Linda and Doris took us for a bus ride to Haliburton, West Guilford, the north side of Green Lake (Grass Lake) Maple Lake and Beech Lake to Hwy. 35 and back to Hyland Crest.

Everyone was glad to see the rain.

Mr. & Mrs. Art Brame and Kerri Brame and Grandmother Kay Peer visited Lucy and Mary Burgess on Tuesday. They came from Burlington.

Wednesday, I had my cousin Sarah Hornick from Chatham. Her granddaughter Sally Ann Neild from Borden and a friend of Sarah's. We went to Haliburton for lunch.

Once again the week has rolled around and Thursday afternoon the ladies from Kinmount Catholic Church came to serve us a delicious tea party, held in the auditorium. Father Felix came with them and played his guitar and sang beautifully for our entertainment. Thank you for the tea party and the music. We appreciate both very much.

In the evening Tom McAllister called bingo for us. It was rather disappointing when so few attended. I presume the heat was too much.

Friday afternoon Happy Hour was held in the auditorium with music played by Nancy Clayton. The residents enjoyed it and sincere thanks.

Ada Lewis had not been well and is in the hospital. We all wish you a speedy recovery, Ada.

Our new resident, Myrtle O'Halloran had one of her children and grandchildren to see her Sunday.

Saturday, Pearl Lyle and Angus Coulter had Angus' daughter to visit them. They were leaving Sunday morning to drive to Calgary, Alta.

Rev. John Burgess took the Sunday night chapel service.

Ann Collison was taken by some of her family to the wedding of her grandson.

Hazel Beattie is back on staff after going to England for the one hundredth birthday of her father. He is a triplet and all three were on hand for the party in their honour. Guests came from all over the world. Hazel and her family had a wonderful time.

We at Hyland Crest extend our sympathy to the relatives and friends of Olga Myles who passed away August 7, 1989.

Alice Todd enjoyed a ten day holiday in Richmond Hill with Harold, Francis and family. They had a reunion with about fifty guests present. Some Alice had not seen in over forty years. It was very nice to see them again.

Monday being a holiday, there were no activities, but Tom McAllister came in the afternoon at 2 o'clock for bingo. There were more out to play so we had a nice afternoon. Thanks for coming, Tom.

Tuesday, Pastor Fast took the morning service.

Because of the holiday Monday, the movies were not sent till Tuesday. Earl Cooper couldn't come this Wednesday night, so the ladies showed the movies instead. The movies were part 1 and 2 of "The Glory of the Garden." It was an English garden and was very beautiful. The films were shown by Ruth Rice and Ena Marion who we thank very much.

We are happy to hear Ada Lewis will be able to return to Hyland Crest soon.

CHOICE LOT ON MAPLE LAKE

The opportunity to purchase a lot of this quality doesn't arrive every day.

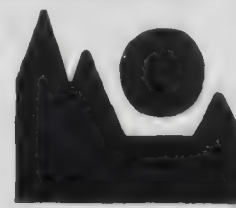

Enjoy beautiful sunsets and excellent family beach from one of the choice locations on Maple Lake.

Huge level open lot with handy, year-round access. The property does have an older building which could be used while building your dream cottage.

Quite possibly the best value you'll find for $129,000.00.

CARD OF THANKS

I wish to convey my thanks and appreciation to the staff of Minden Hospital for their excellent care and professionalism during my recent stay at the hospital. Our community is indeed fortunate that this proficient facility is maintained in our immediate area. It is operated by a competent, caring staff serving the needs of the community twenty-four hours a day.

AT REST

BURCHELL, SIDNEY
—suddenly at Sunnybrook Medical Centre on Friday, August 11, 1989, beloved husband of the late Muriel Smith, dear father of Patricia Burchell and Lorna Hicks. Fondly remembered by his grandchildren Beth, Lynn, Debra, Jim, Jane and Ian. His great grandchildren Amanda, Nathaniel, Nigel, Melissa, Erica and Jennifer. Also survived by his brothers Howard and Hubert. A remembrance may be made to the First Sunnybrook Fund, 2075 Bayview Ave., or the charity of your choice. 8C

IN MEMORIAM

COULTER: Harold. In loving memory of a dear husband, father and grandfather who passed away August 23, 1983.

As time unfolds another year
Memories keep you ever near.
Silent thoughts of times together
Hold memories that will last forever.

Always remembered by wife
Marjorie, children and grandchildren.

CORPORATION OF THE TOWNSHIPS OF ANSON, HINDON AND MINDEN

NOTICE

(File #RA-88-09)

IN THE MATTER OF the Municipal Act; and
IN THE MATTER OF a proposed by-law of the Corporation of the Townships of Anson, Hindon and Minden to stop up, close and convey to the adjoining landowners portions of the original allowance for road along the shore of Twelve Mile Lake, lying in front of Lot 13, Concession 13, in the Township of Minden.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN pursuant to Section 301 (1)(a) of the Municipal Act, R.S.O. 1980, as amended, that the Council of the Corporation of the Townships of Anson, Hindon and Minden proposes to consider and, if deemed advisable, to pass at its regular meeting to be held in the Municipal Council Chambers on Milne Street, Minden, Ontario, on September 14, 1989, at the hour of 10:00 a.m., a by-law to stop up, close and convey those parcels of land more particularly described as follows:-

Parts of the original allowance for road along the shore of Twelve Mile Lake in front of Lot 13, Concession 13, in the Township of Minden, in the County of Haliburton, designated as Parts 3 & 4 on a preliminary plan of survey by Bishop & Wilson Ltd., Ontario Land Surveyors, dated December 15, 1988. The plan of survey is available for inspection in the Municipal Office, Minden, Ontario, during regular office hours.

AND FURTHER TAKE NOTICE that before passing the said by-law at the meeting to be held at the time and place above-mentioned, the Council shall then and there hear in person or by his or her counsel, solicitor or agent, any person who claims that his or her land will be prejudicially affected by the said by-law and who applies to be heard.

Dated at the Township of Minden this 27th day of July, 1989.
